

Police Federation Bravery Awards 2006 - celebrating the courage of police officers

Bravery

Bravery Award winner PC Sarah Harding – the first female officer to have won the overall title – with her partner and Prime Minister Tony Blair at 10 Downing Street.

Photos left to right: Preparations for a glamorous Bravery Awards night at The Dorchester hotel in London and guests arrive for the awards dinner and ceremony

Delivery driver Anthony Crompton – who tackled two armed robbers to protect two shop assistants - receives the Jill Dando award from Cherie Blair

PC Philip Stratton, from British Transport Police, who accepted a special award on behalf of all key workers involved in London's terrorist bombings last year, stands with bomb victim John McDonald (right)

Guests enjoy drinks at The Dorchester in London

Met award winners PC Anthony May and PC Michael Pinder received their awards from actress Kara Tointon from television soap EastEnders

Photos left and right: Bravery Award winners from around the country line up for their photograph outside 10 Downing Street

Photos left and right: Officers meet Prime Minister Tony Blair

Jan Berry, chairman of the Police Federation and John Francis, general secretary, take the opportunity to speak to Prime Minister Tony Blair

