

Conference 2011 in pictures

Federation chairman Paul McKeever received a standing ovation after his keynote speech (above), as Theresa May looked on (left); many delegates queued to put questions to the Home Secretary after she had spoken

Shadow Home Secretary "punch bags" and taking

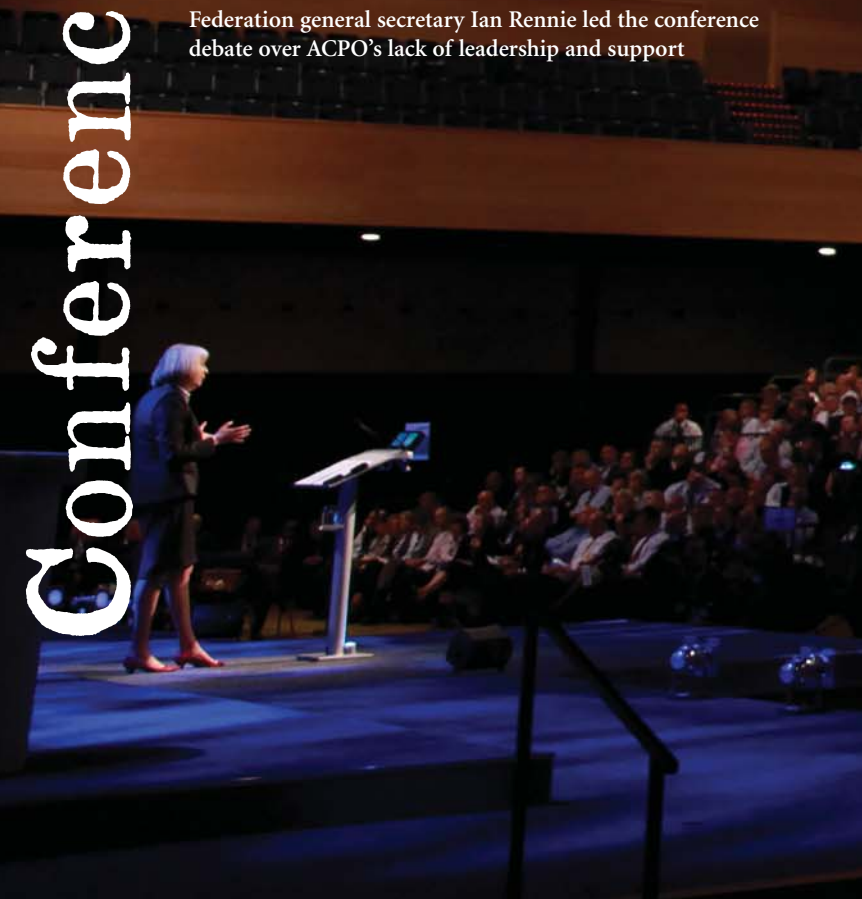

Federation general secretary Ian Rennie led the conference debate over ACPO's lack of leadership and support

Conference attracted visitors from around the world, including Greg O'Connor, President of the New Zealand Police Association

Media coverage was again in the spotlight with Sky and the BBC broadcasting speeches by the chairman and Shadow Home Secretary

The government's failure to recognise the important role of the detective highlighted during the PFNDF session

Yvette Cooper accused the government of using officers as "huge risks" with the fight against crime

Chairman Paul McKeever joined many other delegates in showing support for the Gurney Fund for Police Orphans

Julie Nesbitt led the debates at the constables' conference

Dagenham duo Gwen Davis and Vera Sime, whose fight for equality was made into a major film, were conference guests

Despite chief constable Peter Fahy's attempts to defend ACPO's position, officers passed a vote of no confidence in the organisation

Federation vice-chairman Simon Reed was among the speakers during the main conference sessions

Lance Bombadier Ben Parkinson, 7RH Parachute Regiment and Sergeant John Sandford-Hart, REME Regiment raised over £3,000 for charity Pilgrim Bandits for forces' amputees at conference

...ense, with ...ng the main ...d the Home

...was