

PFEW Pay and Morale Survey 2019 Hertfordshire Constabulary

Author: Nicola Chandler

Police Federation of England and Wales

Security classification	<input checked="" type="checkbox"/> Not protectively marked	May be published openly / immediately
	<input type="checkbox"/> Protected	Review whether broader publication
	<input type="checkbox"/> Restricted	Not for open publication. Restricted to:
	<input type="checkbox"/> Confidential

Contents

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY	3
INTRODUCTION.....	4
RESPONSE RATE AND RESPONDENTS	4
REPRESENTATIVENESS	4
PAY AND REMUNERATION.....	6
COST OF LIVING.....	6
SATISFACTION WITH PAY	8
MORALE	9
REASONS FOR LOW MORALE.....	11
ATTITUDES TOWARDS THE POLICE	12
FAIR TREATMENT	14
INTENTION TO LEAVE.....	16
REASONS FOR INTENDING TO LEAVE THE POLICE SERVICE.....	18
NOTE FOR BRANCH BOARDS.....	19

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

- 192 responses were received from Hertfordshire Constabulary, representing a response rate of around 9% (based on July 2019 Home Office figures of officer headcount).
- 77% of respondents from Hertfordshire Constabulary said that they are dissatisfied with their overall remuneration (including basic pay and allowances).
- 47% of respondents from Hertfordshire Constabulary reported worrying about the state of their personal finances every day or almost every day.
- 68% of respondents from Hertfordshire Constabulary felt that they were worse off financially than they were five years ago.
- 12% of respondents from Hertfordshire Constabulary reported never or almost never having enough money to cover all their essentials.
- 49% of respondents from Hertfordshire Constabulary told us that their morale is currently low.
- 72% of respondents from Hertfordshire Constabulary felt that morale within the force is currently low.
- 52% of respondents from Hertfordshire Constabulary said that they would not recommend joining the police to others.
- 12% of respondents from Hertfordshire Constabulary told us that they had an intention to leave the police service either within the next 2 years or as soon as possible.

INTRODUCTION

The PFEW Pay and Morale Survey obtains federated rank members' views on their pay and conditions, as well as their attitudes to their work and the police service in general. The Pay and Morale survey is one of the largest annual surveys of police officers conducted within England and Wales and has been conducted each year since 2014.

This report provides a summary of responses to the PFEW Pay and Morale Survey received from respondents within Hertfordshire Constabulary in 2019. Where appropriate, details of average responses for the police service as a whole are also presented¹.

RESPONSE RATE AND RESPONDENTS

192 responses were received from Hertfordshire Constabulary, representing a response rate of around 9% (based on July 2019 Home Office figures of officer headcount). The national response rate for the 2019 survey was approximately 16% of all federated rank officers in England and Wales. Last year's response rate for Hertfordshire Constabulary was 17%. Please bear this in mind when making comparisons with last year's findings.

REPRESENTATIVENESS

In order to calculate whether the sample size is representative, it is necessary to take the population size into account, along with the margin of error and the confidence level. In essence, the margin of error measures the maximum amount by which the results from the sample are expected to differ from those of the actual population and is calculated using the sample size (the number of responses from federated rank officers in Hertfordshire Constabulary), the population size (the total number of federated rank officers in Hertfordshire Constabulary) and the confidence level.

The smaller the margin of error, the more confident we can be that the results are representative of the overall sample. For example: If 60% of respondents answered 'Yes' to one of the survey questions and the margin of error is 5%, we can estimate that 55% - 65% of the whole population would answer the same if asked.

¹ Data were weighted at a national level on the basis of respondents' force to ensure that each force were proportionally represented within the national sample; no weightings were applied at a force level. More information about weightings can be found in the 2019 headline report R048/2019.

If the margin of error is less than 5%, it can be considered to be within the normal bounds of academic rigour. The margin of error for this report has been calculated, and at a 95% confidence level, this report has a margin of error of 7%.

As the margin of error is greater than 5%, the academic standards have not been met and as such, the results from this report must be interpreted with caution².

Overall in England and Wales, 934 survey respondents declined to state which force they belonged to. The responses from these officers have been included within the national data but are excluded from force-level analysis.

70% of responses from Hertfordshire Constabulary were received from male officers and 28% of responses were from female officers. 36% of respondents were Constables, 46% were Sergeants, 14% were Inspectors and 5% were Chief Inspectors.

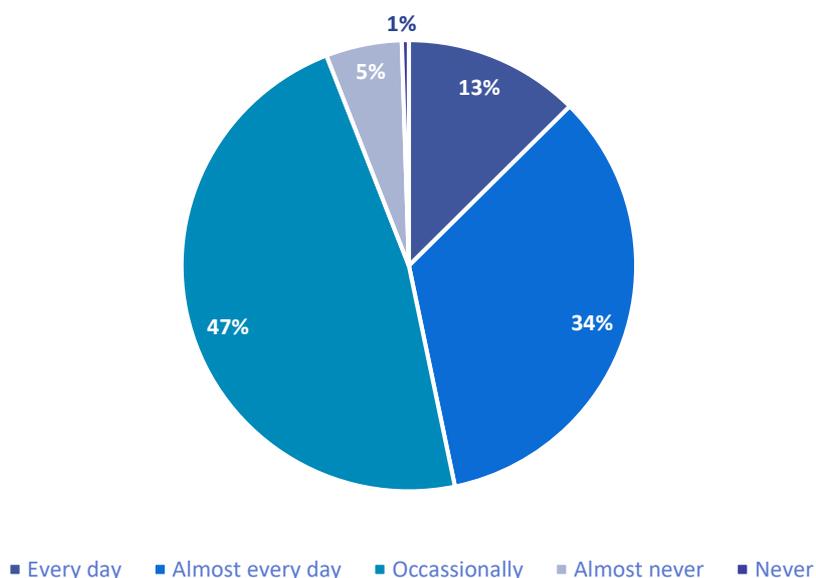

² The generally accepted academic standards is a 95% confidence level with a 5% (or less) margin of error.

PAY AND REMUNERATION

COST OF LIVING

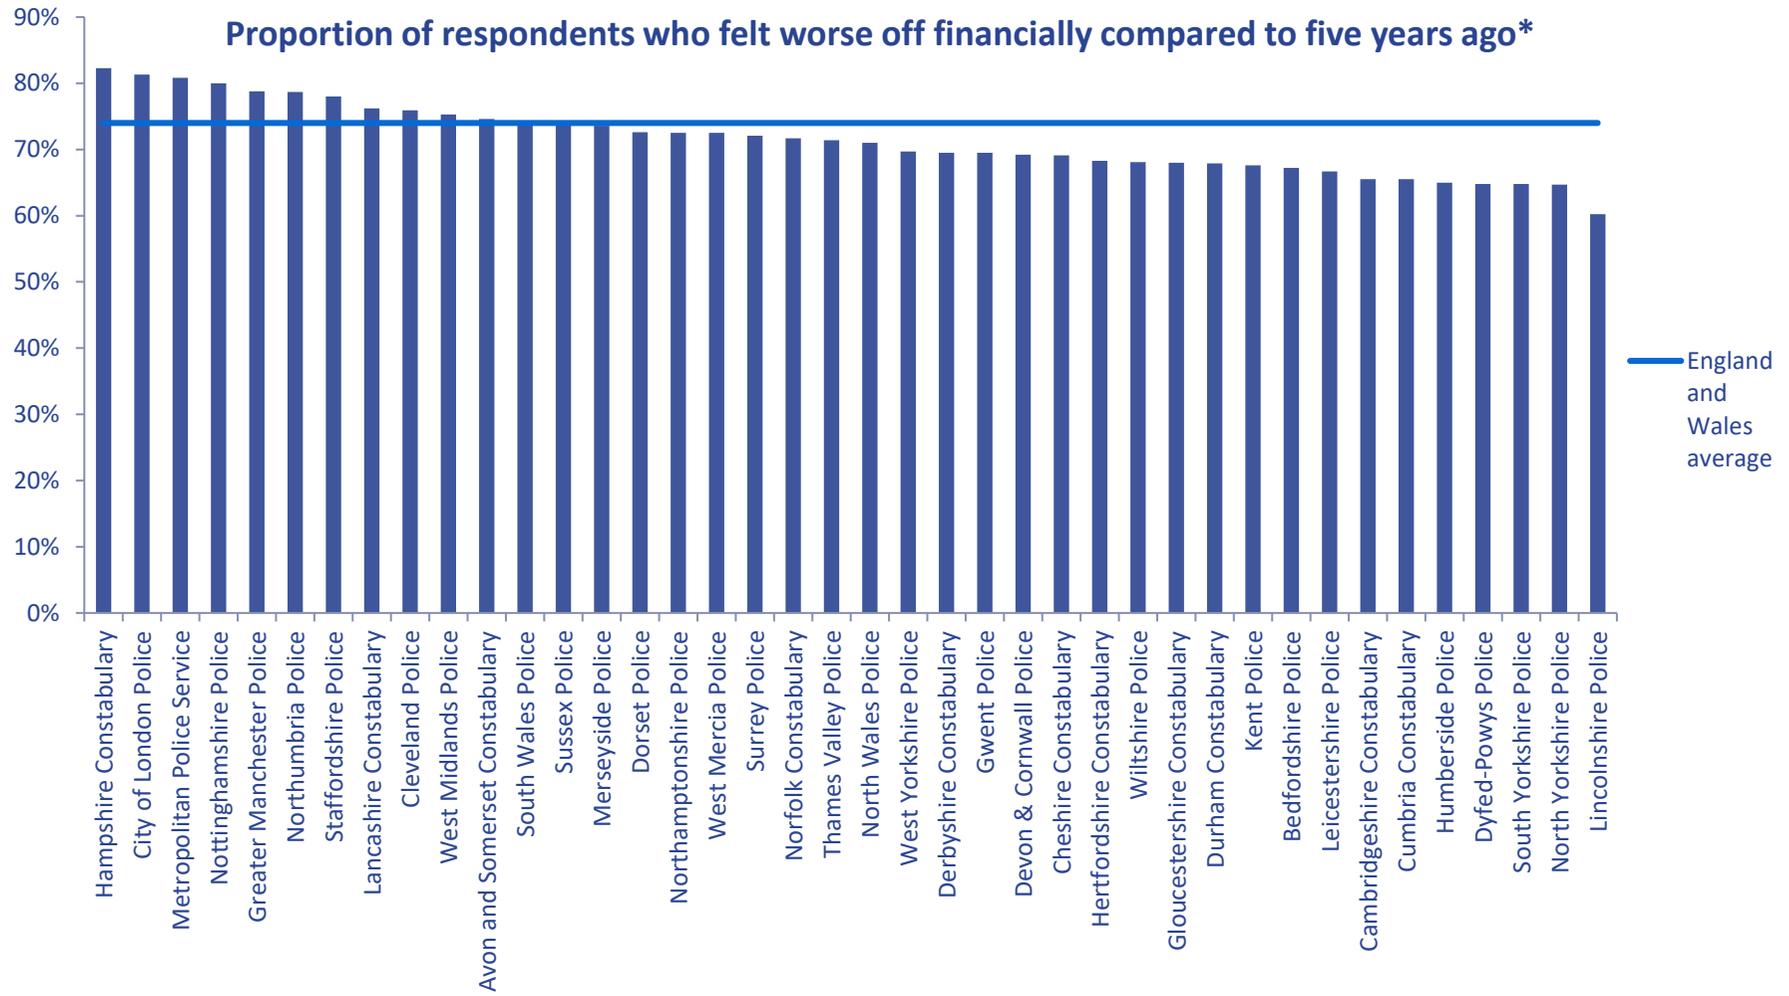

47% of respondents from Hertfordshire Constabulary reported worrying about the state of their personal finances every day or almost every day. This is lower than the national average for England and Wales, where 51% of respondents reported that they worried about their personal finances every day or almost every day.

How often do you find yourself worrying about the state of your personal finances?

76% of respondents in Hertfordshire Constabulary said that they had enough money to cover all of their essentials either every month or almost every month. In contrast, 12% reported never or almost never having enough money to cover their monthly essentials. Nationally, the proportion of respondents who said they never or almost never had enough money to cover their essentials was 15%.

68% of respondents from Hertfordshire Constabulary felt that they were worse off financially than they were five years ago. This proportion is lower than the equivalent proportion for England and Wales as a whole, where 74% of respondents said that they were worse off financially than five years ago.

* Responses for Essex, Suffolk and Warwickshire are not listed because the number of responses received within these forces fell below the threshold for force comparisons to be meaningful

SATISFACTION WITH PAY

91% of respondents from Hertfordshire Constabulary told us that they do not feel that they are paid fairly for the stresses and strains they have within their job, and 73% said that they are not fairly paid for the hazards they faced within their role. Nationally, 91% of respondents said that they were not fairly paid for the stresses and strains of their job and 83% said that they were not fairly paid for the hazards they faced.

Comparison of 2019 and 2018 figures for perceptions of fair pay in Hertfordshire Constabulary is provided in the table below.

	2019	2018
Do not feel fairly paid for the stresses and strains of their job	91%	93%
Do not feel fairly paid for the hazard faced within their job	73%	79%

77% of respondents from Hertfordshire Constabulary said that they are dissatisfied with their overall remuneration (including basic pay and allowances) and 56% said that they are dissatisfied with their pensions. Comparison of 2019 and 2018 figures for pay and remuneration in Hertfordshire Constabulary is provided in the table below

	2019	2018
Dissatisfied with total remuneration	77%	82%
Dissatisfied with pension	56%	65%

MORALE

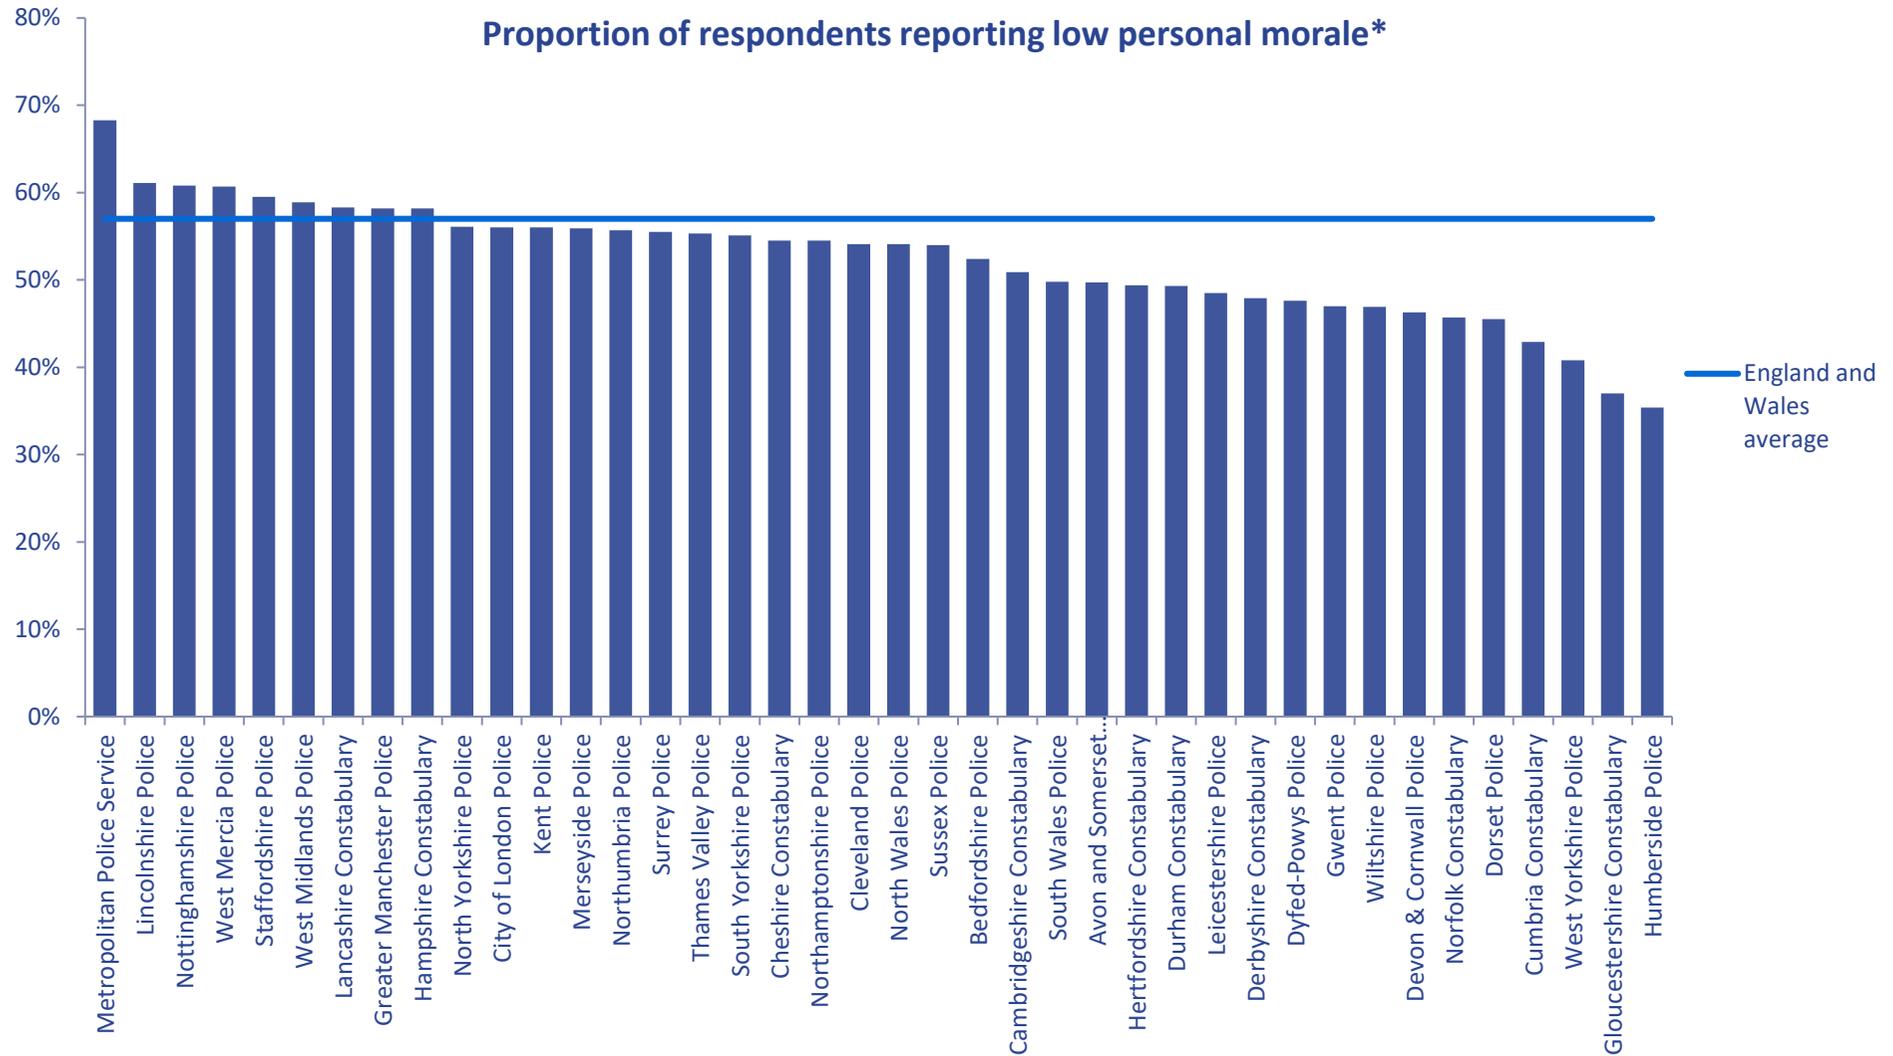

49% of respondents from Hertfordshire Constabulary told us that their morale is either low or very low. This is smaller than the proportion of respondents in England and Wales who said that their personal morale was either low or very low, which this year was 57%.

72% of respondents from Hertfordshire Constabulary felt that morale within the force is low or very low. Nationally, 87% of respondents said that morale within their force is low or very low.

Comparison of 2019 and 2018 figures for morale in Hertfordshire Constabulary are provided in the table below.

	2019	2018
Low or very low personal morale	49%	67%
Low or very low force morale	72%	87%

* Responses for Essex, Suffolk and Warwickshire are not listed because the number of responses received within these forces fell below the threshold for force comparisons to be meaningful

REASONS FOR LOW MORALE

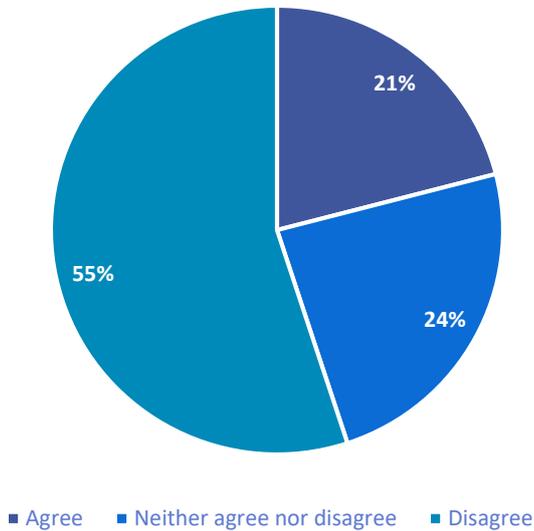

The survey asked respondents about the factors that had a positive or negative effect on their morale, the table below shows the proportion of respondents in Hertfordshire Constabulary who said a particular factor has had a negative effect upon their morale compared to the national average.

	Negative effect on morale (Hertfordshire Constabulary)	Negative effect on morale (England and Wales)
Pay and benefits (including pension)	73%	81%
Day-to-day job role	41%	45%
Workload and responsibilities	61%	61%
Work-life balance	51%	62%
Opportunities for development and promotion	44%	45%
Health and wellbeing	60%	58%
How the police as a whole are treated	79%	83%
Treatment by senior managers	35%	41%
Management of change within the police	71%	77%

ATTITUDES TOWARDS THE POLICE

55% of respondents from Hertfordshire Constabulary said that they did not feel valued within the police. This compares to 65% of respondents in England and Wales as a whole.

I feel valued in the police service

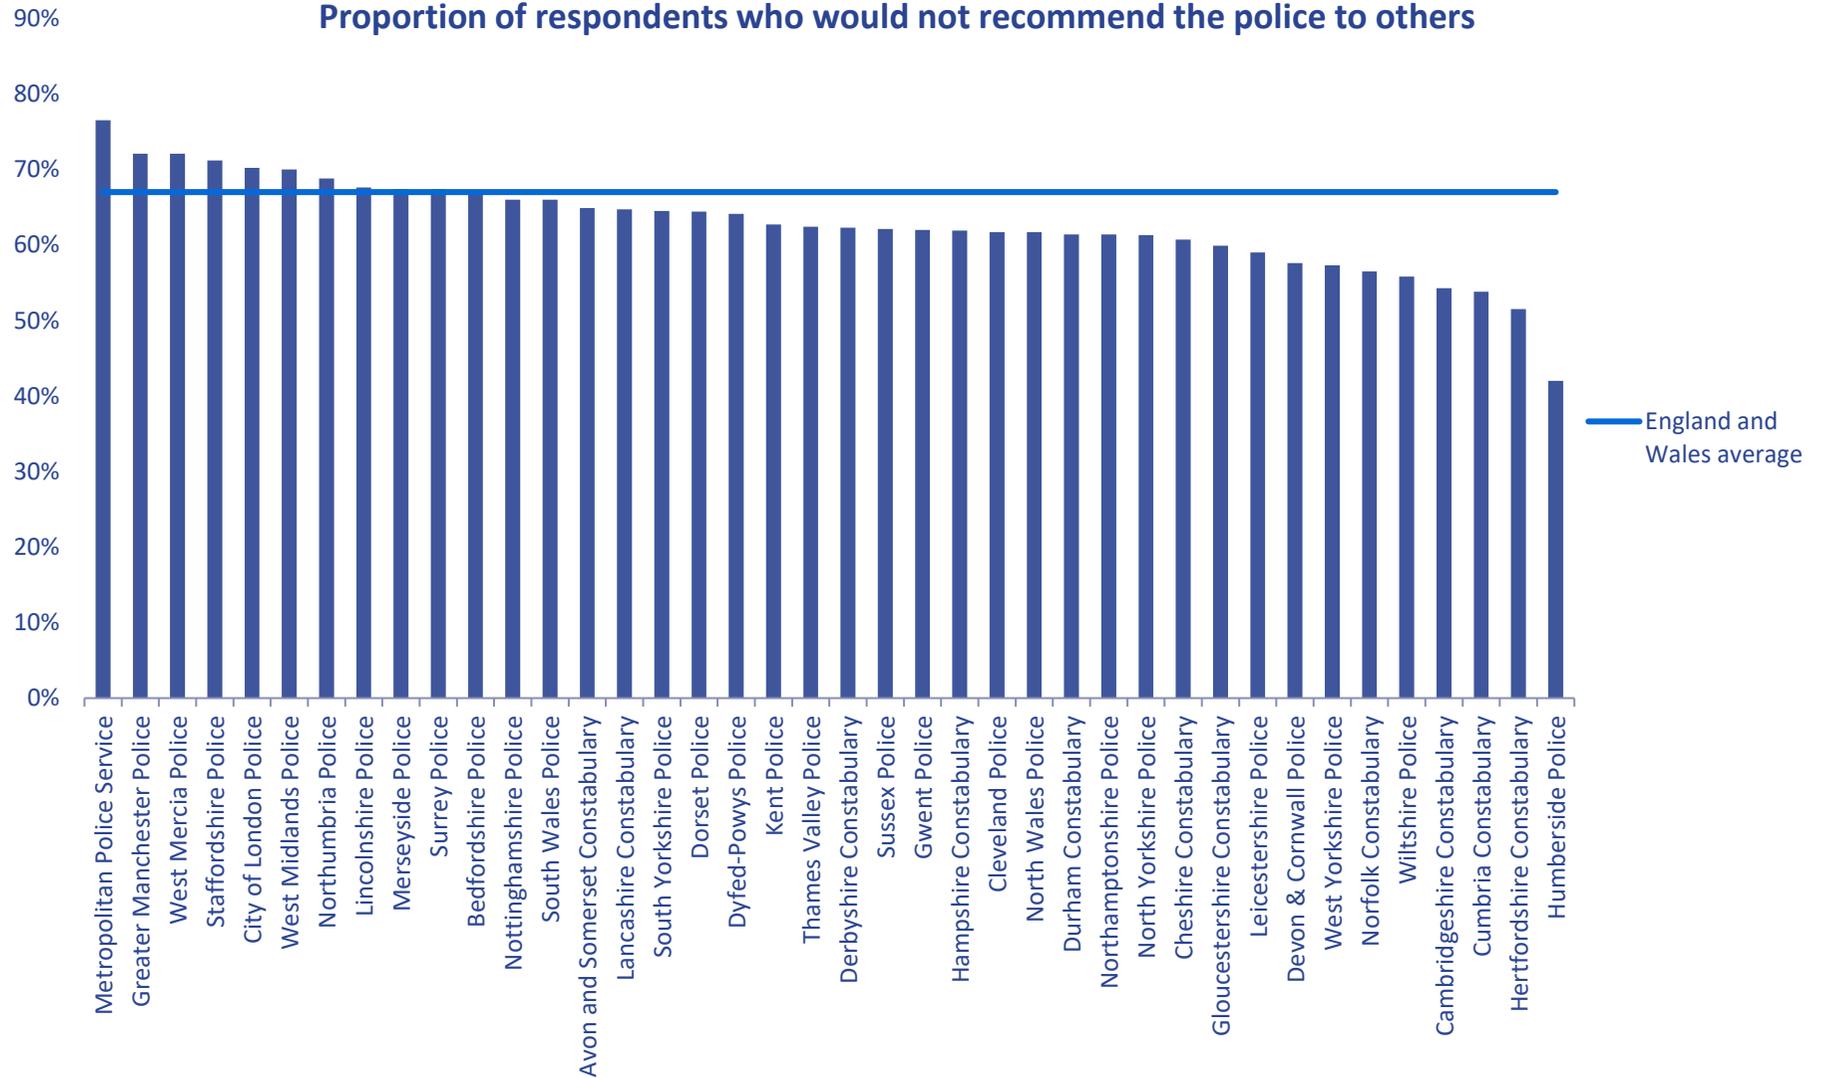

52% of respondents from Hertfordshire Constabulary said that they would not recommend joining the police to others. This is lower than the national average, in England and Wales as a whole 67% of respondents said that they would not recommend joining the police.

Comparison of the 2019 and 2018 figures for attitudes towards the police in Hertfordshire Constabulary are provided in the table below.

	2019	2018
I would not recommend joining the police to others	52%	74%
I do not feel valued in the police	55%	70%

Proportion of respondents who would not recommend the police to others

* Responses for Essex, Suffolk and Warwickshire are not listed because the number of responses received within these forces fell below the threshold for force comparisons to be meaningful

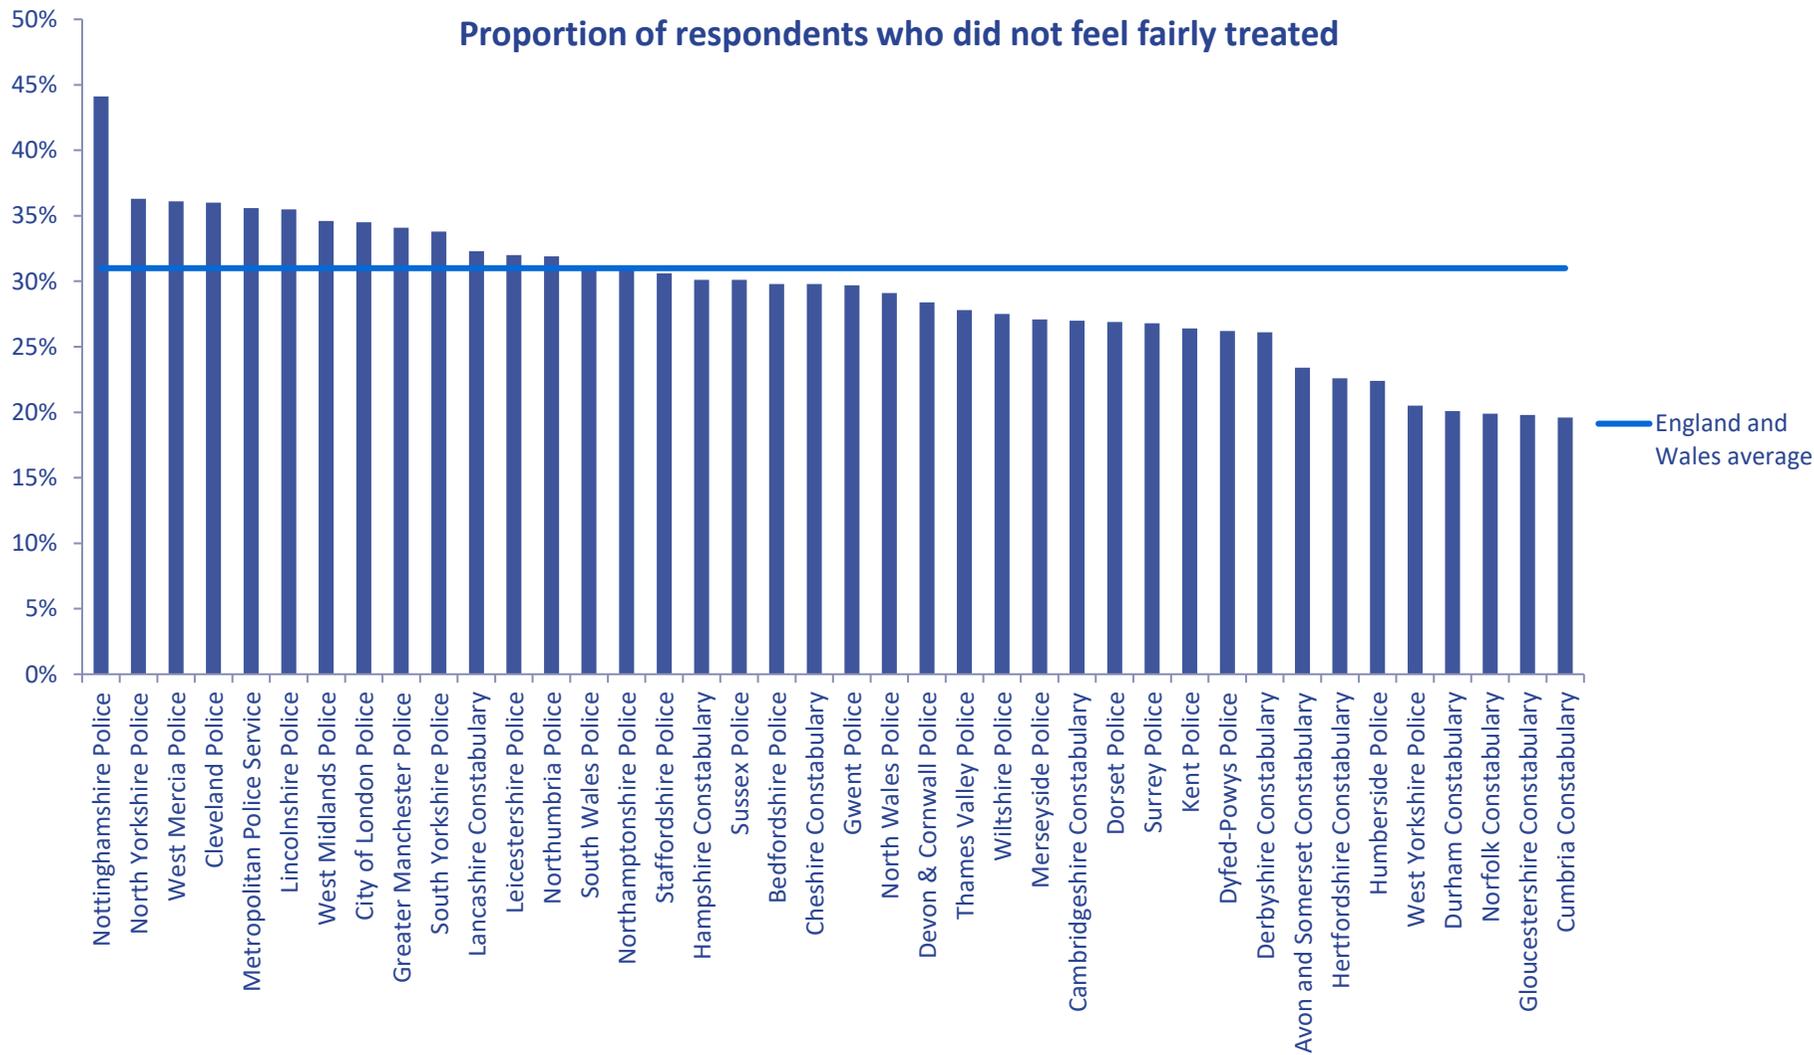

FAIR TREATMENT

23% of respondents from Hertfordshire Constabulary said that they are not treated fairly compared to 51% of respondents from Hertfordshire Constabulary who feel that they are treated fairly. Respondents in Hertfordshire Constabulary were more likely to say that they are treated fairly compared to England and Wales as a whole, where 38% said that they are treated fairly.

In addition, 50% of respondents from Hertfordshire Constabulary told us that the people they worked with are fairly treated. At a national level, 34% of respondents felt that the people they worked with are fairly treated.

Comparison of 2019 and 2018 figures for fairness in Hertfordshire Constabulary are provided below.

	2019		2018
	Disagree	Agree	Disagree	Agree
I am treated fairly	23%	51%	31%	39%
The people I work with are treated fairly	26%	50%	34%	35%

* Responses for Essex, Suffolk and Warwickshire are not listed because the number of responses received within these forces fell below the threshold for force comparisons to be meaningful

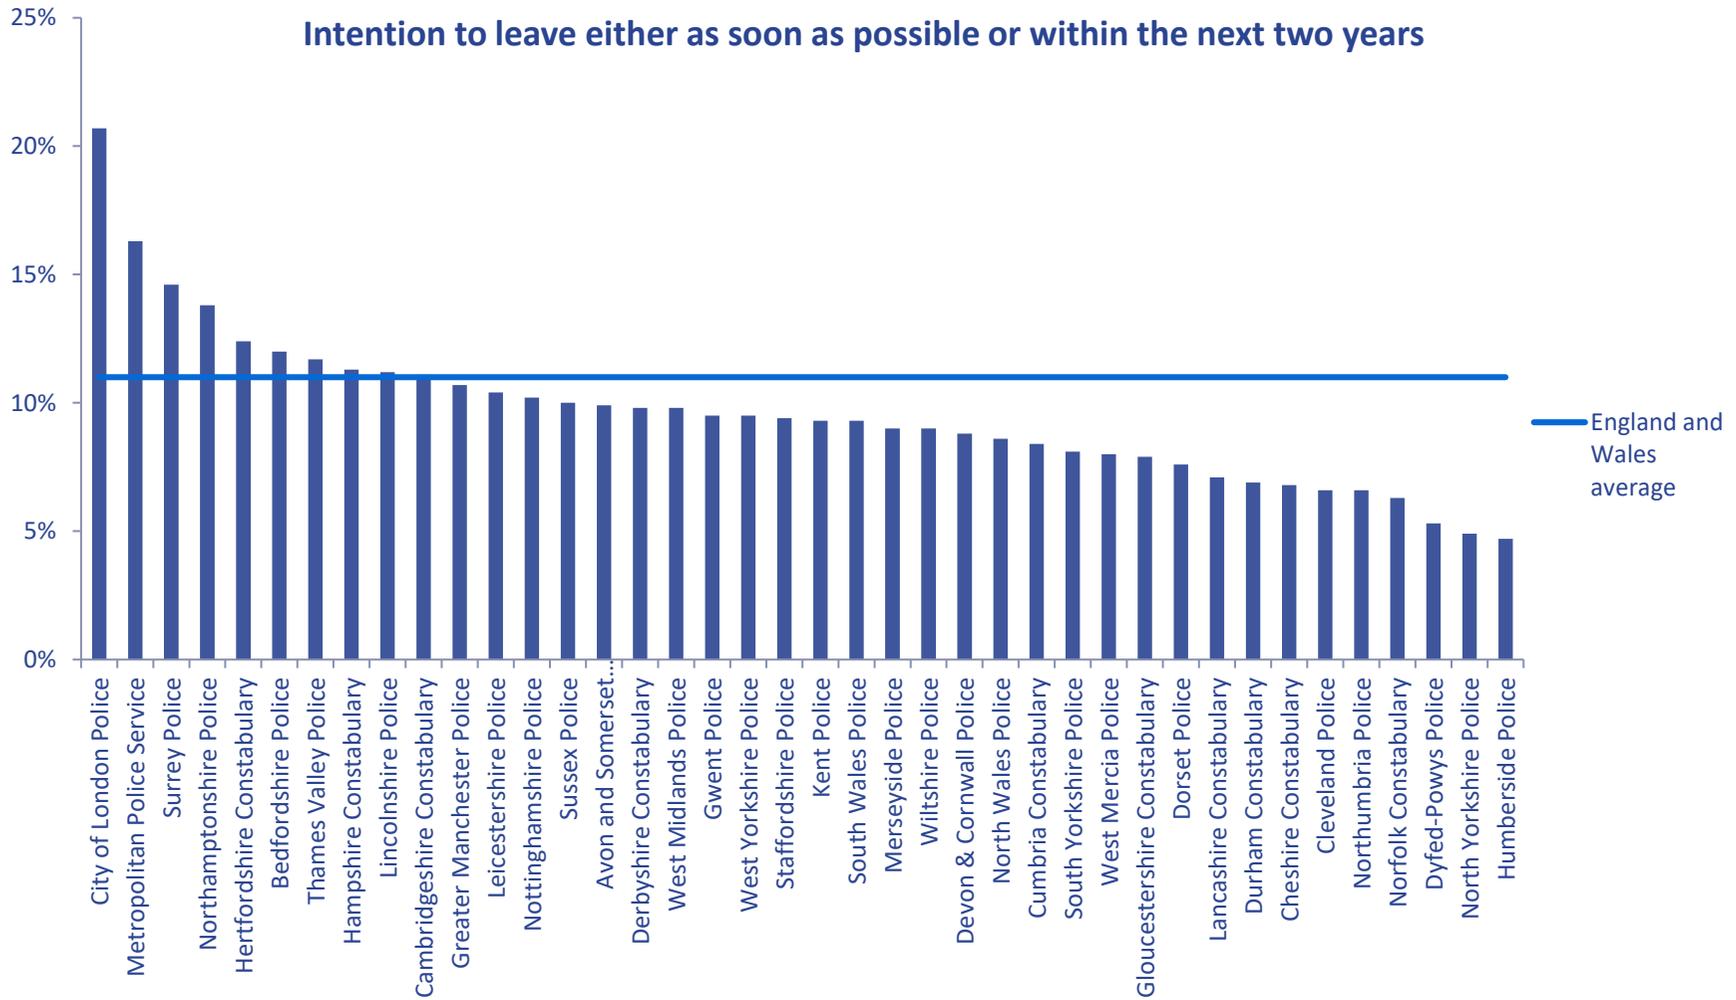

INTENTION TO LEAVE

12% of respondents from Hertfordshire Constabulary told us that they had an intention to leave the police service either within the next 2 years or as soon as possible. In comparison, in England and Wales as a whole 11% of respondents said that they intended to leave either as soon as possible or within the next two years.

Comparison of 2019 and 2018 figures for intention to leave within the next 2 years or as soon as possible in Hertfordshire Constabulary are provided in the table below.

	2019	2018
Intention to leave the police service within the next 2 years or as soon as possible	12%	15%

* Responses for Essex, Suffolk and Warwickshire are not listed because the number of responses received within these forces fell below the threshold for force comparisons to be meaningful

REASONS FOR INTENDING TO LEAVE THE POLICE SERVICE

Respondents who had said they intended to leave were asked to indicate the reasons behind this intention. The table below shows the proportion of respondents in Hertfordshire Constabulary who said that a particular factor has had a major effect on their intention to leave, compared to the national average.

Please be aware that respondents were able to choose more than one option therefore the figures provide below will not add up to 100%.

Factor	Major effect on intention to leave (Hertfordshire Constabulary)	Major effect on intention to leave (England and Wales)
The impact of your job on your family/personal life	48%	60%
Your morale	71%	79%
Your opportunities for development and promotion	52%	42%
Your pay and benefits	52%	73%
Better job opportunities outside of the Police	52%	58%
The impact of the job on your health and wellbeing	57%	71%
Dissatisfaction with your day-to-day job role	33%	44%
Your workload and responsibilities	52%	48%
How the police as a whole are treated	48%	68%
Your treatment by senior managers	48%	38%

NOTE FOR BRANCH BOARDS

Additional findings from the 2019 Pay and Morale survey are available on request from the Research and Policy department. Additional topics include, but are not limited to:

- Reasons for not applying for promotion
- Satisfaction with training and development
- Engagement (including pride in the police)
- Perceptions of fair pay (e.g. in relation to the hazards or stresses on the job)

The findings of the survey can also be broken down in more detail in terms of different demographic groups, such as rank, role or length of service. However please be aware that we can only go into a certain level of detail with this demographic data in order to preserve respondents' confidentiality.

Branch Boards wishing to obtain further information in a certain area can contact ResearchandDataCollection@polfed.org to discuss their requirements. The Research and Policy Department only has one member of staff responsible for these data requests therefore please bear this in mind in terms of turnaround times and the amount of data you request.

All other interested parties should speak to their local Police Federation Branch Board in the first instance.