Career Transition Support

When you have spent a large chunk of your career working in the “job”, the thought of finding work on the “outside” can be daunting. You will know what your transferrable skills are, but do you know how you can use them in other sectors? How do you write a CV that will get noticed? How are interviews conducted in the commercial business world and how can you prepare? As part of the career transition support we can help with the following:

Tailored 1:1 support – Identifying your transferable skills and experience and how you can use them

Advice on the types of roles suitable, the job market, salaries and live support on online job search

How to approach identified businesses speculatively, to generate interest and potential opportunities

Coaching on how jobsites work, assistance with posting your CV onto jobsites and how to apply for positions

Assistance with preparing an interview pack – what to take with you on interviews

Assistance on formulating a job search plan which works for you

Assistance and guidance on preparing a CV and covering letters

Coaching on how to handle interviews

Assistance with completing job applications

Successful Job Offer

Having worked in the force ourselves, we understand and can offer extensive knowledge of what is required to source suitable careers after you’ve left the “job” and have assisted many people exiting the emergency services and armed forces. We understand that everyone is different and will have different concerns, so we will work with you on bespoke solutions to address them.

What next?
