Location

Wall, Northumberland

Hall Yards Cottage is located in the village of Wall in the high uplands of Northumberland. If you're looking for a relaxing retreat in the countryside, this is the ideal place. Steeped in history, the village takes its name from the nearby Hadrian's Wall which runs close to the Northumberland National Park.

Wall is also close to the charming town of Hexham which was voted England's favourite market town by Country Life magazine. With great shopping facilities, local inns, restaurants and a buzzing arts scene, there will be plenty for you to discover. If you're interested in history, head to Hexham Abbey which dates back to 674. For those who want a fun day out, Hexham has its own racecourse where you can enjoy the races and incredible views of the rolling countryside too.

The Owners And The Offer

HALL.YARDS.COTTAGE

Both owners of Hall Yards Cottage work for the emergency services. Michael works on the Northumbria Police Marine/Dive Unit, while his partner Gina works for the NHS. Hall Yards Cottage was lovingly renovated by the pair over the last 18 months and is newly on the market for short stays. Having carried out the majority of the renovation work themselves, between the dramas of shifts, childcare and lockdown, they wish to extend the offer for fellow colleagues and their families (at a discount) to come and enjoy the cottage. Michael and Gina know how overlooked and over-worked emergency service workers can be. Their intention is to offer this as a token of appreciation for their colleagues.

Hall Yards is ideal for a couples retreat between shifts as well as a well deserved family breakaway.
